School Notes

Grayling School.

Matinee Saturday afternoon.
Fisher Shipp Concert Company Saturday evening at 8 o'clock.

"Gossip is unfriendly criticism."
Because of the state teachers' association meeting at Saginaw it is expected that all departments of our schools will be closed next week
Thursday and Friday.

The seniors are still busy canvassing for the entertainment course. If you wish to aid a good cause, buy one or two season tickets. Should the class succeed in making a few dollars the profits will be expended for the benefit of the new high school.
Let it be understood, however, that the primary object of the course is not to make money. Good entertainments always have a cultural and educational value.

Because of the large number of beginners in the first grade and because of the small size of the room it has become necessary for a part of the beginning class to come in the forenoon and the other part in the afternoon.

The second grade room in Danebod Hall enjoyed a vacation yesterday on account of the Olson-Schlotz wedding.
So far as the children are concerned
they would be glad to have "Nick"
get married offener.

We are sorry to state that it was found necessary last week to cancel the football game that had been scheduled with West Branch. It was found on Monday that we could muster only nine players whose scholarship was such as to make them eligible to play on the team. Our high school boys and girls work well while at school, but that is not all that is necessary. Very few parents will confer a favor upon the school and also a great benefit upon their boys and girls in the high school by requiring them to do from one to two hours of work upon their lessons each evening.

Frederic School Notes.

The Grayling boys defeated our boys in base ball Saturday. It was a very interesting game. We are glad they came, however, and hope to see them back again.

Preparations are being made for a play "Dr. Cure All" to be given soon.

This week has started out fine by three new pupils entering school.
Miss Florence Oliver enters the high school and the other two enter the grammar room.

Nothing has added more pleasure to school life than the new history readers, received for the 5th and 6th grades.

Dolly Smock is a new pupil in the intermediate room.

The boys and girls of Miss Cameron's room are going to have a Hallowe'en program November 30th.

Miss Cameron has just finished reading "King Arthur and his Knights of the Round Table," which was enjoyed very much by the boys and girls.

Tap ball is the chief sport of the boys of the intermediate room now.

Marie and Raymond Brown have gone to Waters for a short time.

George Brown has returned to high school after a few weeks absence.

Supt. Hood and secretary Barber made a trip to Deward last week in an automobile.

The best thing so far this season was a musical program given by the school last week. Miss Mae McDau-maid was in charge.

On Monday mornings mass meetings are proving to be a rousing success. Miss Cameron had charge of it this week.

Miss Mabel Maler, the primary teacher, has her pupils busy making jack-o-lanterns.

Commissioner Visits Schools.

Commissioner of schools, Kalahar, has just completed an official visit to each of the rural schools of the county and reports that he has found school conditions surprisingly good. All schools are in full swing with teachers and pupils full of enthusiasm.

A new feature of the commissioner's visit is a report which he makes to the director of each school showing conditions and recommending such improvements as are necessary or advisable. He stated that he was meeting with hearty co-operation on the part of the school directors and teachers and anticipates that he will find affairs on a still better footing upon his next visit. Mr. Kalahar has his own auto and is thus better able to look after the rural schools than has been done before. He is strictly on the job and giving his duties as commissioner strict attention.

For Indigestion.

Never take peppin and preparations containing peppin or other digestive ferments for indigestion, as the more you take the more you will have to take. What is needed is a tonic like Chamberlain's Tablets that will enable the stomach to perform its functions naturally. Obtainable everywhere.

The Girl Scout or Camp Fire Movement.

BY DORIS DECKROW.

When we first hear the name "Girl Scouts" for an organization it does not appeal to us. In fact it repels us.
The word "scout" suggests war, danger, physical and mental daring, ex-posure to all kinds of unpleasant experiences, and these things do not seem to be a part of the life nature intended for woman.

To our minds, woman's real sphere is wholly apart from that of man and so are her sports and recreations apart from his rougher ways. It is far more beautiful, far more ideal, far more attractive than the sphere of man. It is the wonderful world of the home;
away from the shop, the office, the factory, the lawyers' or judges' or doctors' domain. It is a world of busy activities, of careful detail, of infinite possibilities and of undeveloped mines of pleasure and profit to the individual and the race.

Yet under existing conditions the only way to have a home for a large majority of women is to go out of the home and work for it. And once working out of the home it is imperative that woman should have a voice in the making of the country's laws.

But to return to our Girl Scouts or Camp Fire Girls. Investigation proved that the organization was only adventurous and masculine in name.
Its ideals are wholly feminine and wholesome.

This organization was founded at Des Moines, Iowa, late in the summer of 1910, by Clara Adelta Lisetor Lane, daughter of Col. and Mrs. William R.
Lisetor Lane. Inasmuch as it was the first organization of the kind for girls in the United States, it created great interest from the first and has been eagerly watched by persons interested in promoting the good of the girl. The work embraces cooking, sewing, housekeeping, first aid, nursing, nature study and the doing of good turns. There are outdoor sports, of course, but these are of such a nature that they will not detract from the refinement or womanliness of the girl. A strict ban is put on all forms of coquetry.

The work is destined to create a revolution in dress, too, for the Camp Fire Girls may not lace. Not only that, but they are asked to discard all forms of artificiality, as rats, rouge, paint, powder, false hair, pads, and the numerous other things that comprise the make-up of the woman of today.

Camp Fire work provides the means of learning the way to attain, and helps in attainment. It gives the girl what she needs to round out her life and make herself supporting. It does not take her from her home but rather gives her interests that place a new phrase on home life and make it desirable. The work is conducted in a manner similar to the Boy Scout work.
Honors are given for work well done in any one line that will make the girl self supporting, while special honors are given for work in any line that will place a girl in a position of trust and honor.

The work started with one troop,
and grew until now troops are organized in the act of organization in 22 different states. Possibly one of the greatest recommendations which it possesses is the fact that a large number of schools have arranged to give the work either entirely or in part in their schools during the coming year.
This plan was first adopted in the western states, but lately has been taken up in the east also. A national council has charge of the work. This council is composed of many persons of national prominence, all interested in seeking the highest good of the girl. We do not know of anything which seems to offer better results for the race in the way of employment of the time of young girls than this organization of the Camp Fire Girls.

America is the home of independence and freedom for woman, and in the carrying out of these national ideas lies great danger. Young girls are not properly guarded, not properly guided. They are allowed to seek their own pleasures and their own companions, of both sexes, and enjoy themselves as they see fit, while their trusting and unwary parents imagine they will find only normal and moral outlets for their youthful vanity and only think or talk along harmful lines. It would appal the parents of America were they to gather together the girls of the public schools from ages of seven to seventeen and put them through a third degree of investigation regarding their knowledge of modern life and society. Not one girl in one score receives any wise instruction from her mother or guardians before she goes into the public school, instruction which if rightly given acts as a safeguard against evil. Little girls of lamblike innocence are sent into the wolf's den of the public school to learn every sacred and beautiful fact of life in a vile and vulgar manner.

And there is no one to protect and guard them from such experiences, because parents have not made them feel that they can come to them in search of knowledge on these subjects, and so the white mind becomes soiled and dangers thicken about the child as she grows into young womanhood and is given leisure and liberty to enjoy herself as she will. The Camp Fire movement offers a protection, it offers guardianship, it offers direction and wise instruction.

PROMINENT WOMEN
OF MICHIGAN

MISS BINA M. WEST.

Mrs. ALBERTA V. DROELLE.
Miss Bina M. West, twenty-three years ago, organized the Woman's Benefit Association of the Macabees.
On October 22, the cornerstone of a beautiful $200,000 home office building for the society will be laid with great ceremonies at Port Huron.

Miss West is a Michigan woman. She began her work on October 1, 1892, with no members and no funds. Today there are over 180,000 women enrolled in membership, and the reserve fund of the society reaches nearly the nine million dollar mark.
She has signed away with her own hand over twelve millions of dollars in benefits.

Mrs. Alberta V. Droelle, of 411 St.
Aubin Avenue, Detroit, is the great commander for Michigan, and she is to be congratulated on the success she has attained for the society in this State.

Members from all parts of the State are taking a great interest, and nearly every review will be represented. A class of candidates numbering 500 will be presented to Miss West from Detroit alone, at the large public meeting to be held the evening of October 22, at Macabee Temple, Port Huron.

SAGINAW WILL BE READY FOR THROG

CITY PREPARING TO TAKE CARE OF THOUSANDS OF TEACHERS.

STATE MEETING THIS MONTH

Exceptionally High Grade of Talent On Program Expected to Equal Previous Records of Attendance.

Saginaw—This city has preparations about completed for members of the Michigan State Teachers' association, who will come here October 28 and 29 for their thirty-third annual state convention. It is expected there will be between 7,000 and 8,000 teachers, as reservations are pouring in from all sections of the state and the officers of the association have reports that the attendance will be unusually heavy.

Last year at Grand Rapids there were nearly 8,000 present, and the city was nearly swamped for accommodations, but Saginaw, through a two months' canvass of the city, has made arrangements so that every teacher that comes can find a good room and meals. The homes of the city have been opened up for the visitors, and all commercial organizations have assisted in securing the lodgings.

Louise Homer, the prima donna, will be the great musical number for the convention, and the speaking talent will be made up of ex-President Taft, David Starr Jordan, of Leland Stanford university, Mary Antin, of New York city, P. P. Claxton, United States commissioner of education, and others.

GREAT DAY AT PORT HURON

Laying of Corner Stone of Maccabees' New Building On Friday.

Port Huron—Friday, October 22, will be a big day in this city for the Maccabees. On that day will be laid the corner stone of the magnificent new building which will, when completed, be the headquarters of the Woman's Benefit Association of the Maccabees. The city has declared the day a civic holiday, and thousands of visitors will be here from all over the state. Gov. Ferris and his staff will attend, as will also D. R. Markey, supreme commander of the Knights of the Maccabees; Attorney General Fellows, Senator Charles E. Townsend and many other notables in the official life of Michigan and in Maccabedom.

The cornerstone will be laid at 2:30 p. m., under the auspices of the Maccabees, and the evening meeting will begin at 7:30.

EXPECT COPPER TO ADVANCE

Mining Companies Are Said to Be Holding Metal for Better Price.

Calumet—Lake Superior copper mining companies are holding enormous stocks of refined metal for higher prices than have been offered in the open market the past month.

Managers of the mining companies condition of affairs. and members of the boards of directors believe prices are going higher and the prediction has lately been made that Lake Superior copper will sell at more than 20 cents very shortly. Scattering large sales have been reported at more than 18 cents, both Copper Range and Mass Consolidated letting big lots out recently, but both these companies, as well as all of the Calumet & Hecla companies are now said to be holding their metal back.

Lived More Than Century.

Grand Rapids—George Shag-Na-By, an Indian, aged 118 years, was buried Sunday near Hart, Oceana county. He was a gray-haired and bent old man in 1857 when the government drove the Indians from near Ada, Kent county, to Copanua, Oceana county. He recounted happenings of a century ago and said when these took place he was a young man.

MICHIGAN NEWS ITEMS

Jewish residents of Port Huron have raised a large sum of money to help Jews of Europe made homeless by the war.

The pastors of Barry County have selected Sunday, October 24, for an anti-saloon rally. On that day speakers representing the Anti-Saloon League will occupy nearly every pulpit in the county.

State Veterinarian Dr. Dumphy Saturday said that the infection in a herd of cattle near Adrian is not the foot and mouth disease. He said there was some irritation in the mouth which was caused by change of feed from short dry grass to a long wet pasture.

Robert L. Durkee and Zellar Sniff, the two young men who walked to the San Francisco fair, have returned to their homes at St. Louis. They were presented with homeward bound transportation by Harry K. Thaw, whom they met at Reno, Nev., while on their westward hike.

While driving a rock well on the farm of William Moss in Essex township, Clinton county, workmen discovered a six-foot vein of coal. The coal is down 220 feet and is covered with 75 feet of shale. Plans are being made for developing the coal.

The cornerstone of the new school building at New Lothrop was laid Monday afternoon, Masons from all over the county assisting in the services. The new school building will cost $10,000 and was obtained only after the other building had been condemned.

MICHIGAN NEWS BRIEFS

V. V. B. Merwin, of Adrian, the oldest member of the Lenawee county bar, is dead at the age of 78 years.

Representatives of a hundred banks in group four of the Michigan Bankers' association were addressed at Grand Haven Wednesday by President W. C. Morrill, of Big Rapids. Day spent in outdoor sports, yacht cruises and luncheons. A banquet and a business session were held in the evening.

MINERAL POTASH FOUND IN UTAH

FIRST TIME THIS ARTICLE HAS BEEN PRODUCED IN THE UNITED STATES.

LANE MAKES ANNOUNCEMENT

America Has Been Importing This Mineral From Germany In Large Quantities For Many Years.

Washington—Production for the first time in the United States of commercial mineral potash, for which in the past Americans have spent millions of dollars abroad annually, was announced Sunday night by Secretary Lane, of the interior department. A report had just reached the department from a special agent of the geological survey telling how, by a simple process, potash had been produced from alumite found in a great vein in Platte county, Utah.

As alumite is known to exist in large quantities in Utah, Colorado, Nevada, California and Arizona, Mr. Lane believes the discovery assures the country of an adequate supply of potash for agricultural purposes and for use in the manufacture of explosives.

Statistics show that imports of potassium salts from Germany amounted to $15,000,000 in 1913, the last year for which figures are available.

The Utah alumite experimented with is in a vein 10 feet wide which has been traced for about 3,500 feet. Its depth has not been ascertained. Reports show that more than 20 tons of the mineral have been mined, producing two tons of 99 per cent pure potash. At the present time there are 100,000 gallons of alumite containing large amounts of potash salts in the course of evaporation.

POLICE CHIEF IS KILLED

Shot While Raiding Negro Gambling House in Galesburg.

Galesburg, Ill.—Lynn Mathews, chief of police, was shot and killed Sunday night while leading a raid on a Negro gambling house. His assailant is said by the police to have been "Lottie" Hopkins, a Negro gambler. The shot fired by Hopkins was the signal for general fusillade and when it ended was found that Hopkins had escaped. He was arrested later, however, and hurried out of the city to avoid violence.

Mathews was 38 years old, and leaves a widow. He was shot through the right lung and died in a few minutes.

Suffragist Convention at Saginaw.

Saginaw—The annual state convention of the Michigan Equal Suffrage league will be held in this city November 10 and 11, and committees are at work preparing for the care of about 750 delegates. A banquet at the Saginaw club the evening of November 11 is to be one of the entertainment features of the gathering. The chief topic of discussion at the convention will be whether or not to ask the 1917 legislature to resubmit the constitutional amendment giving women the right to vote.

Chicago's Second Dry Sunday.

Chicago—Fifty-two violations of the Sunday saloon closing law were reported to police headquarters Sunday night. The previous Sunday, when Mayor Thompson's order enforcing the law went into effect, 23 violations were reported. There are 7,152 saloons in the city.

In the towns and villages outside Chicago liquor was sold as usual with one exception. Phoenix, with a population of 1,200 and 18 saloons, was "dry" throughout the day.

Tenement Fire in New York.

New York—Five persons were suffocated or burned to death early Sunday in a fire that swept through a five-story tenement at 2127 Third avenue. A score or more are suffering from severe injuries. The lives of many others who were imperiled were saved by the formation of a human chain by firemen and detectives.

ITEMS OF STATE INTEREST

Escanaba and Delta county will be the center of what "dry" leaders characterize as the hottest fight on the local option question in the upper peninsula next spring. Thursday afternoon, 15 to 9, the county supervisors voted to submit the question to the people in the spring. There are three breweries in Escanaba.

Wm. H. Halstead, 70, a rural carrier and pioneer resident of Owosso, was killed by a Lansing-Owosso Interurban car, which wrecked his motor car five miles south of Owosso Friday. Halstead's body was carried 150 rods.

Grasping an electric wire over his head, as he worked on a pole belonging to the Consumers Power Co., at Battle Creek, late Saturday afternoon, David DeVoe, a lineman, 30 years old, was electrocuted. BRITISH CRITICS OF U. S. MEXICAN POLICY DEAD

SIR LIONEL CARDEN.

London—Sir Lionel Edward Gresley Carden, who was British minister to Mexico from 1913 until August, 1914, when he was forced to leave Mexico City by Gen. Carranza, after the overthrow of President Huerta, died in London Saturday.

Sir Lionel was best known in this country as minister to Mexico, where he came into prominence during the trying days following the assumption of power by Gen. Huerta. Previous to this, he had held many offices, most of them in the Latin speaking countries of America. He was said to favor Huerta and to have severely criticized the United States for withholding recognition of the dictator.

LARGE SUMS FOR DEFENSE

Estimates of Government Expenditures Are Submitted to Secretary of Treasury Friday.

Washington—Estimates of government expenditures for the next fiscal year, totaling about $1,240,000,000, and the largest ever submitted in time of peace, were presented Friday to the secretary of the treasury.

The extraordinary large sum of money which congress will be asked to appropriate for running the government is due to the prospective big increase in the administration's program of national defense and to the unusual conditions resulting from the European war.

The estimated increase for national defense alone aggregates $150,000,000, while burdens entailed on account of the war will require an increase of about $1,300,000 for the state department. Estimates for the other departments, except state, war and navy and possibly commerce, are about the same as last year. Secretary Redfield, it was believed, would ask for increased funds for extending American trade abroad.

Additional governmental revenues will be necessary, either through legislation or a bond issue, if congress approves of the increased departmental expenditures.

Although no estimate of receipts for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1916, in which the increased expenditures will take effect has been made by Secretary McAdoo, officials now are convinced they cannot count on more than $750,000,000 for the twelve months, and some believe the total income will not go over $700,000,000.

Congress is to be asked to pass two revenue measures early in the coming session, one extending the emergency war tax, which expires December 31 next, and the other providing for retention of the present duty on sugar beyond next May, when it would go on the free list.

Receiver for Steamship Co.

Grand Rapids—The Graham & Morton Steamship Co. went into the hands of a receiver Friday morning. Judge Sessions of the United States district court appointed the Michigan Trust Co. as receiver.

The line is solvent with liabilities of $600,000 and assets of $1,400,000 and the receivership dates directly back to the Eastland disaster in Chicago river, July 29, 1915, which is said to have injured the excursion business.

LETTER FROM STATE CAPITOL

GAME WARDEN HAS PLAN TO MINIMIZE LOSSES BY FOREST FIRES.

MARKET FOR LOCAL FISHES

Representative Peterman Has Plan to Have Legislature Hold Short Session On Off Year to Correct Errors in Acts.

[By Gurd M. Hayes.]

Lansing—State Game Warden William R. Oates is considering an innovation which he thinks will tend to further minimize loss by forest fires in Michigan. The plan, submitted by chief forest fire warden, W. J. Pierson, provides for consecutive numbering of the telephone or telegraph poles along the rights of way of railroads. The poles may then be used to designate location of fires.

Under the plan outlined by Pierson red and white cards will be kept in the cab of each locomotive traveling through districts where there is danger from fire. When a fire is discovered by an engineer he would be required to mark on one of the cards the number of the pole adjacent to the fire. The engineer would then hurl the card from the cab window to the first section guard he passes. The section crew with its car would then be in a position to render prompt service in suppressing the fire.

Operating under the present plan an engineer reports a fire to the operator at the first station. The operator is then required to locate the section crew and there is often considerable delay owing to the fact that extra men and road cars are not always available for messengers service.

"The development of the Michigan market would add greatly to the revenue commercial fishermen receive from their operations in the great lakes," said State Game Warden Oates, who has been studying the commercial fishing industry during the last few months.

"It is known that New York and other eastern cities consume three times the fish per capita that Michigan cities do, yet we have an advantage in location which should make certain kinds of fish come to us at twenty per cent less than the New Yorker should pay."

"Commercial wisdom suggests that it would be good policy on the part of the dealer to foster eating of our fishes locally, at normal market prices and compel reciprocity from the beef and pork states of the west and the mackerel fishers of the east who make us pay excess on that portion of their product which we consume. The great lakes fish. If Michigan people at fish as they should, the reduced portion exported to other states would command a premium. Then too, we would save cold storage expenses and the fish would reach all tables in a more edible condition for the consumer."

If he returns to Lansing as a member of the legislature next year, Rep. A. E. Petermann of Calumet will offer an amendment to the constitution providing for a session of the legislature each year.

While in Lansing recently Representative Petermann discussed the plan with several friends and he has reached the conclusion that an annual assembly would cure many of the defects in the present system of law-making.

It is Representative Petermann's idea that each year following the regular session the members of the house and senate should be called to Lansing for a session of four weeks. He points out that at such times emergency bills could be put through and any of the defects in bills passed at the previous session could be remedied.

Before Petermann's plan can become operative it will be necessary for two-thirds of the members of each branch of the legislature to vote favorably on the proposition, and then it must be submitted to the people and must be adopted by a majority vote.

Further proof that boys at the state industrial school at Lansing have been cruelly fogged by employees was furnished Governor Ferris by Charles C. Webber of Boston, Mass., who was employed by the eugenics commission last year to apply the Binet test to the boys.

Webber lived at the institution for several weeks and in his letter to the governor he substantiates many of the charges that have been made by others relative to the methods of punishment. The governor declined to make public the contents of the letter but he regards it as an important link in the chain of evidence.

"I am more than ever convinced that Superintendent Lawson knows comparatively little of the methods of punishment at the institution," said the governor.

In an effort to obtain a ruling from the federal department of agriculture relative to the sale of anthracnose beans, W. K. Orr, president of the Michigan Bean Jobbers Association, and Dairy and Food Commissioner James Holme will go to Washington to consult Secretary Huston.

There are three questions on which the Michigan men would like rulings. They want to know whether the department holds that an anthracnose bean which is not in any way affected with either mold or must, is injurious to health and cannot be sold by the elevation for any other purpose than food for animals.

They would also like to know whether a bean so described cannot be used for canning purposes. If the department rules that beans containing a certain percentage of anthracnose may be marketed for human consumption, Orr and Holme would like to know what percentage of anthracnose will be permitted in shipments.

At a conference with Governor Ferris, W. R. Reack, a Hart canner declared himself in favor of the government regulations. He said that canners putting up inferior goods and elevator men who wanted to dispose of their cull beans at a profit were largely responsible for the present

With the prevalence of infantile paralysis in various sections of Michigan, information about this disease, which seems to be little understood, should be of great interest to parents as well as all others. In reply to an inquiry for information, Dr. D. Murray Cowie, clinical professor of disease of children in the University of Michigan, furnishes the following:

"It is impossible to diagnose acute infantile paralysis known as anterior poliomyelitis, until the mischief is done. There are, however, prominent symptoms in most cases, but these are by no means different from the symptoms of many other conditions developing during the same months (July to October), save possibly one—pain in the legs and back.

"The usual symptoms preceding the paralysis, or muscle weakness, are slight fever, nausea, vomiting and sometimes constipation, chilliness, pains in the legs and along the spine, which at times are quite severe. In a few hours after the onset of these symptoms, or at the latest three or four days the paralysis or muscle weakness shows itself. The paralysis remains stationary from one to four weeks, when almost invariably improvement begins. The final paralysis, known as residual paralysis, is always less, and usually is much less than the initial paralysis.

"The young are most frequently attacked. The greater number of cases have occurred during the second and third years. Adults are less susceptible, but even the aged are not exempt from infection.

"The disease is contagious and is caused by a micro-organism as yet unknown. This organism is very minute. The virus may be passed through the finest filters and produce the disease when injected into monkeys. The virus is present in the nose and tonsils of the infected.

"The organism is easily killed. Scrubbing the hands carefully with soap and water is probably sufficient to accomplish hand sterilization. One would feel safer if he followed the scrubbing by immersing the hands in bichloride of mercury solution, one part to four thousand parts of water.

"Knowing these facts, which have been established by experimental medicine, we really have the disease completely in our control if the public will force itself to carry out a few very simple but at the same time very rigid rules:

"1. Isolate the patient with a nurse or attendant for three weeks.

"2. Always scrub hands with soap and water after touching the patient, his bed, or anything that has touched him.

"3. Do not allow your clothes to come in contact with infected material.

"4. Destroy all nasal discharge and sputum by burning or soaking in one part to four thousand parts bichloride solution.

"5. Kill all flies in the patient's room. Prevent flies entering the room. It has been definitely shown that a germicidal chemical substance known as hexamethylenamin, when taken in sufficient quantity, get into the spinal fluid. This substance kills the germ that causes the disease if it gets to the spot in sufficient amount. We are uncertain that it does, accordingly the best thing we can do is to recommend that all persons, especially children who have been exposed, and all children who have any of the symptoms described, particularly fever and leg pains, and who reside in neighborhoods where cases of paralysis have occurred, should take this chemical under the directions of a physician. This substance is not without harmful effects if continued too long."

SALTS IF BACKACHE AND KIDNEYS HURT

Drink lots of water and stop eating meat for a while if your bladder troubles you.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; get moving all the body's urinous waste, also you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sour, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water seals and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then be all right. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delicious, effervescent lithia-water drink.

SAGE TEA PUTS LIFE AND COLOR IN HAIR

Don't stay gray! Sage Tea and Sulphur drenches hair so naturally that nobody can tell.

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost overnight if you'll get a 50 cent bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old, famous Sage Tea Recipe are sold annually, says a well-known druggist here, because it drenches the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray, becoming faded, dry, scraggly and thin have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful—all dandruff goes, scalp itching and falling hair stops.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur to-night and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

MICHIGAN'S RURAL HIGHWAYS

By FRANK F. ROGERS,
State Highway Commissioner.

(From "Michigan—the Land of Plenty.")
Lord Bacon has said: "There be three things which make a nation great and prosperous, a fertile soil, busy work shops, and easy conveyance for man and goods from place to place."

If these conditions are necessary to make a nation prosperous, they are equally necessary to the prosperity of a state, and Michigan will not suffer by comparison with other states in these respects.

This state is credited with a land area of about 57,000 square miles, or to be more exact, 36,370,779.62 acres. In 1910 it had 206,960 farms aggregating 18,940,614 acres which cover 51 per cent, or a little more than one-half, of the area of Michigan. Of this farm land, 12,532,078 acres, or a little more than two-thirds of the whole, are represented as cleared and more or less under cultivation. These farms are equipped with machinery and stock making a total value, according to the U. S. census of 1910, of $1,988,858,379, which is nearly equal to one-half of the present equalized valuation of the state.

The transportation facilities of Michigan are: 1,620 miles of coast line on the Great Lakes; about 10,000 miles of steam and interurban electric roads and approximately 70,000 miles of public wagon roads outside of the corporate limits of cities and more substantial roads on which state bounties are paid. These bounties, or rewards as they are called, for the ordinary road where the metal track is made nine feet wide range from $250 to $1,000 per mile, according to the class of road built. Each of these classes of road may receive a ten per cent additional bonus for each added foot in width of metal track between nine feet and sixteen feet. Thus the gravel road which draws a reward of $500 a mile for a nine-foot width of gravel track will draw $850 a mile when the gravel is put on sixteen feet wide and pro rata for intermediate widths. In the same manner the rewards on roads built of macadam, concrete and brick are from $1,000 to $1,700 a mile.

The last legislature established a trunk line highway system for Michigan comprising some 3,000 miles of main highways which are defined in a general way by naming the cities and towns along the routes. The exact location of these highways between the towns was left to the state highway commissioner and local authorities to determine. On the trunk line highways the state reward is twice as much as on the ordinary highways and in addition the state builds all bridges on which the spans are greater than 30 feet and makes surveys, plans and specifications for both roads and bridges. At the present villages. This equals 1.23 miles of highway for each square mile of land area and one mile of highway for each 40 persons, according to the United States census of 1910.

At the present time the highways of Michigan are improved by taxes raised from three sources:

1. A tax levied over the assessable property of each organized township of the state.
2. By a county road tax, in those counties which have adopted the county road system, which is levied over the entire taxable property of the county. This includes cities, incorporated villages, farms and personal property. Fifty-four of the eighty-

A Michigan Highway.

three counties of Michigan at this time (March, 1914) have adopted and are now working under the county road system.

3. By state taxes, through direct appropriations by the legislature, for the purpose of paying state rewards and otherwise aiding in the building of roads and bridges in the state.

It is probable that fully 95 per cent of these roads are still of earth, but Michigan is now rapidly building writing the state has paid rewards on 2,363 miles of road, 43 miles of which are on the trunk line. Two trunk line bridges have been completed, one in Marquette county and one in Wayne county, and bids will be received on April 1, 1914, for eleven more trunk line bridges.

While these state rewarded roads are but a small part of the total mileage of Michigan, they are scattered over 73 counties and reach into 639 townships, which means that more than one-half of the townships in Michigan have a mile or more of these improved roads. The state reward is available to both townships and counties, and the rapidity with which these roads are being built will be realized when it is known that more than enough of these roads were built in 1913 to make two continuous lines reaching from the Ohio line to the Straits of Mackinac.

It will thus be seen that while Michigan has facilities for transportation by water greater than that of any other state and has facilities for transportation by rail equal to most other states of its size and population, it is also making rapid strides in the improvement of its rural highways. In 1913 more than six and three-quarter millions of dollars were expended on the highways of the state and, if road-building continues to increase at the present rate it is safe to predict that within the next decade the main arteries of travel, which carry nearly 90 per cent of the traffic, will be substantially improved and Michigan will assume a prominent place among the states of the Union which are noted for good roads.

Neglected Opportunity.

One of the Lancers, a fighting Irishman, who had been in several bayonet charges, regretted his inability to deal with more than one enemy at a time. This is how he put it: "I was either wan of 'em, sorr, and, faith, I cut see not a wan but him! I rimimbered afterwards that I'd passed by two others whom I could 'av shuck wid the greatest ease."

Mr. Gloom Moralizes.

"Speaking with the authority of one who received a partial education as an expert accountant," remarked J. P. Gloom, "I calculate that I am tired of fully as many people as are tired of me."

PEPPERS AND PEPPER DISHES.

Sweet garden peppers are such a favorite vegetable that one should always have at least a dozen plants in the garden to supply the needs of the table. A name commonly used for this vegetable when canned is pimiento, which is incorrectly used, as pimiento is all spice. The real name is "pimentito," giving another syllable. A chopped green pepper given to almost any salad, and especially a potato salad, improves it wonderfully. Care should be taken to carefully wash them, remove the white inner fiber, as well as the seeds, before using. Peppers chopped and pounded, then fixed with cream cheese make a most appetizing relish.

Fried sweet peppers make a nice garnish to serve with lamb, mutton or pork chops. Stuffed Peppers.—Bread crumbs with tomato or rice and a few nuts, corn beef hash, boiled rice with chicken, and many other combinations make fine stuffings for peppers. See that they are well washed, then cut off the best end to make a stable receptacle, remove the white fiber and seeds; fill the pepper, replacing the cap. Put them into a baking dish with a little stock or butter and water to keep them moist while baking.

Steak Smothered in Sweet Peppers.—Spread over a round steak the following mixture: A cup of bread crumbs, one small onion, chopped; a little poultry dressing, a pint of tomatoes and peppers mixed; if canned they will not need chopping. Place the stuffing on steak, roll and tie and pour over the tomato and pepper mixture. Cook very slowly three hours. Add boiling water or tomato juice if the meat becomes dry. Canned peppers should always find a place on the emergency shelf, as they add much to many dishes. Creamed eggs with a pepper or two added, either chopped or rubbed through a sieve; serve on toast as usual and have an unusual relish. These eggs may be served with a border of seasoned boiled rice instead of toast, if desired.

GOOD EATING.

Some of the following are so unusual that it may take faith to try them, but they will be enjoyed. Yorkshire Bucks.—Toast 12 slices of bread and on top of each place a square of cheese, and on top of the cheese a thin slice of bacon; sprinkle with paprika and place the toast in a dripping pan and pour over a little weakened vinegar, enough to moisten the toast. Place in the oven until the cheese is melted and serve hot. Apple Dumplings With Peanut Butter.—Sift a pint of flour, two teaspoonsful of baking powder, a half teaspoonful of salt, then rub in a half cupful of peanut butter; moisten with cold water as for pie crust. Roll out and cut in squares. Lay on each square a core, peeled apple, sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon, wet the edges and pinch them together. Bake in a greased pan. Cuban Stew.—Take four pounds of mutton, one cupful of olive oil, one can of tomatoes, eight medium sized onions, one can of peas, one can of mushrooms and eight potatoes; a tablespoonful of salt and a few dashes of pepper. Put olive oil into a kettle, and when hot add onions, tomatoes and meat, cut in pieces, with the salt and pepper. Cover closely and simmer three hours. Then add the potatoes, cut in halves, and when they are tender add the peas and mushrooms, drained from the cans. When well heated, thicken the gravy and serve hot. Simple Cake.—Into a measuring cup holding half a pint break an egg, a tablespoonful of melted lard, three tablespoonfuls of canned cream, then fill the cup with flour. Sift together one and a half cupfuls of flour, one cupful of sugar, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and a pinch of salt. Add the liquid and beat hard for five minutes. Bake in layers or in a loaf. Gypsy Stew.—Cook together young carrots cut in slices, green onions, peas and new potatoes. Fry a slice of diced salt pork, turn in the tender vegetables, add milk to it and seasonings, and serve very hot.

DISHES FOR EVENING PARTIES.

Often a light supper which does not tax the digestion will be found most agreeable.

Dressed Oysters.—Chop two dozen large oysters, mix with a tablespoonful of melted butter, an unbeaten egg, one-third of the bulk of bread crumbs, a tablespoonful of chopped parsley and a little onion juice. Season with salt, and paprika. Form into balls and bake ten or fifteen minutes in a hot oven. Serve on oyster shells with parsley and lemon as a garnish.

Asparagus With Stuffed Eggs.—Take canned asparagus, or if fresh, cook until tender in salted water and arrange on a platter in a border of buttered toast points and quartered, stuffed eggs. Pour over a hot sauce made as follows: Take two tablespoonfuls of butter and two and a half of flour; when well mixed add a pint of chicken stock, or a small can of chicken broth and six finely minced mushrooms. Stir and cook for fifteen minutes, then add a cupful of hot cream and the juice of a lemon; strain and reheat.

Chicken and Mushroom Patties.—Sauté two cupfuls of mushrooms in two tablespoonfuls of butter five minutes; season well with salt and pepper. Remove from the fire, take out a scant cupful and chop the remainder fine with two and a half cupfuls of cold cooked chicken. Beat two eggs, add salt, pepper and the juice of half a lemon. Add a tablespoonful of chopped parsley and a pint of boiling milk; stirring until it thickens. Now add the mushroom and chicken mixture and when very hot fill patty shells and garnish the tops with whole mushrooms.

Gingerbread with whipped cream and a cupful of hot coffee is well liked by many people who do not enjoy rich cake.

Cold ham, boiled or fried, put through the meat chopper, mixed with a little mustard or hard-boiled egg, is nice filling for sandwiches.

GOOD THINGS FROM GRAPES.

Grapes are at their best when eaten ripe and fresh from the vines garnished with their own leaves. Grapes if placed overnight on ice, then served with a leaf or two on a plate will have a frosty appearance which will give them an added beauty and the cool fruit will be most grateful.

Grape Juice.—To prepare—pick the stems from the fruit and cover with enough water to be seen between the grapes. Cook until the seeds are free and the skins look pink or have lost their color, then strain. Return the juice to the fire and boil 20 minutes; then to each quart add a cupful of sugar; cook ten minutes longer and bottle in airtight bottles, dipping the corks in melted paraffin.

Grape Juice Ice Cream.—To a cupful of grape juice add a pint of thin cream and sugar to sweeten, a tablespoonful of lemon juice, mix and freeze.

Grape Jam.—Remove the skin from the pulp of well-washed grapes and put them in separate utensils; heat the pulp with a cupful of water and press through a sieve to remove the seeds; add the skins to the pulp and weigh. To each pound of fruit add three-fourths of a pound of sugar and just enough water to prevent burning. Cook slowly for 40 minutes.

Grape Sherbet.—Take three pounds of Concord grapes, three lemons, three pints of water and three cupfuls of sugar. Wash the grapes and put them in a granite pan, mash and squeeze out all the juice; measure and add an equal amount of water, the lemon juice and sugar. The sugar and water, if boiled to a sirup, will make a smoother sherbet. The amount of water should be allowed when measuring. Freeze as usual.

A pretty novelty is crystallized grapes. Select firm, large grapes in perfect bunches; wash carefully and dip in white of egg, then in pulverized sugar. Arrange on a platter on a bed of grape leaves.

For grape jelly the grapes should be underripe. Prepare them as for grape juice, then add the sugar to the juice and cook until it thickens in a cold dish, when a teaspoonful is tried.

Afternoon Dress for the Little Girl

A design in a dress and coat for a little girl, which may be successfully made up in any sort of material is shown here. As pictured the dress is of Irish poplin with a border of ottoman silk in a wide bias band about the bottom of the skirt, and a jacket of the same silk as the band. But the model is just as well adapted to many of the new cotton fabrics. It might be developed in cotton gaberdine for the dress, and cotton corduroy for the jacket, in any of the light, staple colors that these new fabrics are made in.

As shown in the picture the skirt is set on to a belt of the poplin which is also the belt of the plain bodice. The bodice has a small yoke, opening at the neck in a shallow "V" and finished with little, buttonhole scallops. The coat is cut with long shoulders and short sleeves and is lined with the poplin. This is used also for the turnback cuffs and collar and appears in a piping about the edges of the little garment. Small pink frogs form the single fastening. A girdle is worn with the dress.

Among other pretty models for the little miss are full skirts of plaid material confined at the waist with several rows of shirring and set into a plain belt of the plaid. Wide suspenders made also of the plaid material are set onto the belt. Such skirts are finished with a plain, three-inch hem and are only moderately wide. They are worn over thin blouses made of batiste or organdie or other sheer material. Short top coats or jackets of plain woolen goods, matching the dominant color in the plaid skirt, are worn with them. Together they make a smart looking outfit for the little girl.

Showing the Direction of the Millinery Wind

Here are two pretty dress hats which show which way the millinery wind blows. As to trimming it points to simplicity, but as to shape it continues to blow "every which way."

In materials hatters' plush, velours and combinations of velvet with other materials are in steady demand and such combinations appear in these two hats.

At the top the picturesque shape is of velvet and plush, the velvet appearing on the upper brim and in a wide flange against the plush facing. The top crown is of velvet. A wide, handsome faille ribbon is laid in folds about the side crown and the ends are joined at the right of the front. Here an odd feather ornament is posed at an equally odd angle. Sprays of fine feathers, which look like frost-covered twigs, spring from a big cabochon of feathers and dance in every breeze that blows. At the left a ball and tassel of silk, fastened against the crown, give this model more than the usual allowance of ornament.

The brim in this shape is very irregular and the crown is eccentric in shape but both are made of good and becoming lines. Such shapes are not universally becoming, but when they do suit the face, they seem made especially for the wearers.

Below is a French sailor with the brim widened at the left front, which is an indication of the privilege accorded to brim by the mode. They do all sorts of unexpected things. The brim is of hatters' plush faced with velvet and has a narrow velvet binding. The top crown is soft and of velvet.

This hat, becoming to almost every face, has a band of the new, brilliant flitter-jet about the side crown. The sequins are small and set very thick, overlapping one another in a mass of brilliant scales. Two long "feelers" spring from a small oblong body of the flitter-jet, the little sequins or spangles extending a little way on each one. Two of the odd, stiff ornaments are set at the back—one on each side of it. The hat would be prettier without these, and measured by the season's standards would be amply trimmed.

FRIENDSHIP BRACELET A FAD

Pretty Idea Which at Once Met With Recognition and Is Spreading Among Young People.

There is a fad among young people for so-called "friendship" bracelets. Each of her friends, of either sex, furnishes the girl who is starting her bracelet with one flat link, upon which his or her initials are engraved. Then the links are slipped on to a flat velvet band and tied with a bow, or have a clasp which the girl herself has made, with her own initials engraved upon it.

Many dealers furnish the links from 25 cents up, according to size, material and weight, engraving the initials free of charge. If desired, one may have the links fastened together by little rings, doing away with the velvet band.

It is believed by the superstitious that a mole in the hollow of the cheek denotes a quarrelsome disposition.

A Patriot's Prayer

By REV. JAMES M. GRAY,
Dean of Moody Bible Institute of Chicago

TEXT—I . . . prayed.—Nehemiah 1:4.

Nehemiah was a great man, a great statesman, a great administrator, a great leader of men. But he was great in the spiritual realm as well, he had great power with God.

Although a Jew, yet he dwelt in Persia and occupied a position of peculiar influence at court; he was the king's cup-bearer.

It was some time after the return of his countrymen from that land of their captivity to their beloved Palestine, but they were not prospering very well since their return. Some of them on a visit to Persia had been telling him about it. They were in great affliction from their enemies round about. The walls of Jerusalem had never been repaired since they had been burned down by Nebuchadnezzar 150 years before, and the result was they had no protection against assault.

Man Deeply Affected.

This deeply affected Nehemiah, so that he sat down and actually wept. When patriotism moves us to weep for our country it looks like the real thing, especially when it is followed by something else as it was here.

The weeping was accompanied by fasting also, so different from the modern way of showing patriotism, which not infrequently takes the form of a banquet with speeches. This fasting lasted for days, he must have been alone in it; but at length it came to a head in prayer. Oh, if our statesmen, and politicians and reformers only knew the secret! How much more they could accomplish at the Throne of Grace than by legislation, and conferences, and harangues, and newspaper articles.

A Wonderful Prayer.

It was a wonderful prayer this. First, it was a selfish prayer. He was not praying for himself but for people, who, for the most part, he did not know and had never seen. They were his countrymen, that was all, and they were in sore need. How much do we ever pray for our southern negroes, or the mountain whites, or the dejected Indians on our western plains, or our dependents in the Philippines? What real interest have we in either their material or spiritual condition?

Second, it was such a humble prayer. Somehow or other he felt a sense of personal responsibility for the condition of his countrymen afar off though they were. He confessed to sin in the premises, and included his "father's house" in his confession. If he and his ancestors had acted differently things would not have been as they were. What do we know of that?

Third, the prayer was helpful nevertheless. Helpful, because he had a strong promise of God to rest upon. "Remember thy word," he said, and then he quoted that word. Can you do that? You must know the promises to be able to do it, and you know the promiser also. How much do you search God's word to discover its treasures for yourself or others, and how much do you exercise yourself to bring them down from heaven for life on earth? Nehemiah just agreed with God about this matter. Ah! that is power. Read the chapter for yourself and see how he did it.

Fourth, the prayer was very definite. He didn't go round Robin Hood's barn as the saying is. He didn't mouth out a lot of fine phrases or pious notions. He told God just what he wanted and when he wanted it, if it would please him to give it. He was going to stand before the king on a certain day in his capacity as cup-bearer, and that would be a good time to ask a favor of the king. He was going to ask him that he might be commissioned as governor of Jerusalem to go up there and build the walls and deliver his people out of their affliction. The king must be disposed to grant the request, and he asked God so to dispose him. Why do not the rest of us cultivate that simplicity and directness? How interesting it would make both our private and public devotions, and how it would enhance God's glory as we thus came to look for answers to what we asked.

Fifth, the prayer was successful, of course. "It pleased the king to send me," says he, "and I set him a time."

The God of Nehemiah still lives and nothing is too hard for him. The promise in Philipians reads: "Be anxious for nothing; but in everything by prayer and supplication, with thanksgiving, let your requests be made known unto God." Our national Thanksgiving day will soon be here again, and if sincerely we count our national blessings during the past year, it will be the best preparation for that earnest prayer we so much need. Afflictions are upon us in certain quarters and perils are ahead and greatly do we as a nation need God. May he stir us up to lay hold of him in prayer. Some of us cannot fight, but who may not pray?

We are wisest when we cease to question how and in what manner the Spirit may speak to us, and simply seek to keep ourselves so attuned to spiritual influences and impressions that we shall hear and recognize him in whatever voice or tone or form his message shall come.—Zion's Advocate.

The time never comes when a reconstruction does not imperil some great interest.—Herbert Newton.

Broken bones are now quickly healed by an injection of bone dust in petroleum around the ruptured ends.

Cobalt is coming into use for the making of high-speed steels. Titanium is a deoxidizer or purifier of molten steel.

The hardness of steel is due to the fixing in it of austenite and martensite. Prolonged heat caused these to break down and form a softer pearlite.

If you have a boy who is afraid to soil his hands, lead him out into the garden and start him to digging. Stand over him and see that he keeps on digging. And when he gets tired, just hand him an ax and show him the wood pile and let him exercise his muscles there for a few days. Possibly the barn needs a good cleaning out. That will please him and add a little more to his muscular development. It may soil his hands, but a little soap and water will do wonders when properly applied. He may not be ardent, in love with his job, but they will serve to beat a little horse sense into his head and in time he may become a fairly good citizen. The high positions in the commercial world are not filled by men who were afraid to soil their hands in their youth. A dirty face is to be censured, but soiled hands are more often an evidence of manly toil.—Ewen Press.

Local News

Henry Stephan was up to Indian River and Cheboygan on business Monday and Tuesday.

A pot luck lunch was given at the home of Mrs. Jane Stanford in honor of Mrs. Joe Letzkus, Saturday evening.

An eight pound son was born Monday morning to Mr. and Mrs. Scott Wiley living on the Borchers farm on the South side.

Mr. Lewis E. Parker, of Beaver Creek, was united in marriage to Mrs. Sarah Tanner, of Grayling, at seven o'clock last evening. Rev. Aaron Mitchell performing the ceremony. Mr. Parker is one of the prosperous and popular farmers of Crawford county.

While driving to town Monday Henry Stephan and wife and John Hasser and sister saw two beautiful birch deer; each one had a fine pair of antlers. They were headed for the game refuge west of Babbitt's. It looked very much as if they had had a fight, or were looking for one. Henry hopes he may meet them again next month. Mrs. Claude Keyport was at home to a number of lady friends Saturday afternoon. In one room some of the ladies were comparing crocheted patterns while their fingers were deftly forming them. While in the other rooms the other guests were enjoying Bridge Whist. Misses Hattie Kraus and Anna Walton served a delicious luncheon and everyone felt that they had had a delightful time. Mrs. J. H. Lamb received the highest score.

Thursday evening October 14th the Campfire girls enjoyed their first out of door meeting. As soon as could be arranged after school, all left for a hike along the river. After some excitement caused by the two guardians losing the way all arrived at Lovell's landing. Seventeen members gathered around a glowing fire and enjoyed a typical outdoor meal, which had been supervised by Leora Ellsworth and Florence Reagan. To add to the merriment of the occasion, one of the girls kindly fell into the river, but was rescued without serious results. The next meeting is to be a sewing circle.

W. H. Hill, assistant secretary of the Northeastern Michigan development bureau, was in the city Tuesday and met with the Board of supervisors where he gave out information relative to the work of that bureau and answered such questions as were put to him. While the work of the bureau may seem to some to be slow, to look at its accomplishments in the aggregate gives it a more favorable outlook. Crawford county has annually appropriated $200 toward the support of the work of the bureau and this year a similar sum was subscribed and Melvin A. Bares and Edwin Chalker were elected delegates to attend the annual meeting of the bureau which will be held in Bay City some time in the near future. It has been the writer's privilege to attend one of these annual meetings and it is here where one becomes enthused and interested in the work that is being done. If one may imagine conditions as they were before the organization and systemized work of the bureau began and compare the same with conditions as they are today, with the hundreds of settlers nicely ensconced on pleasant farms, improving the land and adding value and population to our commonwealth, we cannot help but feel that the bureau is worthy of all the support and co-operation that we, as individuals, are able to give it.

Northwestern Michigan has a similar organization and they are pushing for all there is in them, and seem much more elaborate and extensive in the use of printers' ink. The work of the bureau is being watched closely and it is only by showing satisfactory results that they may hope to be supported, and in this Secretary Marston and his assistants are using their united efforts to accomplish.

DuPont News Items.

Mr. A. L. Foster made a business trip to Bay City last Saturday returning Monday afternoon. Miller Rose and John Shouldice went out for an auto ride last Sunday with James Smith to Deward. The intention was to hunt birds, but as the birds were not very plentiful and what there were seemed to be too frightened to wait for target practice, consequently they had bacon and eggs for supper. Shouldice tried to shoot an old camp from the inside and never touched it. Smith did hit an old tin can after he hung it over the end of the gun barrel.

Several of the brick masons who have been working at the DuPont plant since the beginning, completed their work last Saturday and left for Bay City Saturday night to begin another job that Mr. Sheffield has waiting for them there.

Eugene Ceyotte of Bay City arrived in Grayling on Monday to assist in the pipe fitting and other work fitting out the plant. Mr. Ceyotte is an old employee of the DuPont company at Bay City.

Supt. Rose of the DuPont plant went to Bay City Tuesday to be doctored up for cold, threatened with pneumonia. He has been heard from and is still alive and did not have to undergo an operation but everything else. He was put into hot water till he boiled. He drank about four quarts of hot lemonade, the front side of his back was all covered with mustard plasters then sat at near the fire as he could, without sitting on it, for a few hours. He expects to be able to return to Grayling to work about Thursday of Friday.

C. T. Clark, General Supt. of the DuPont works, was in the city Friday last looking after his business here, returning home Saturday.

R. M. Torrey, of E. J. Badger & Sons Co., Boston, is expected here the latter part of the week to install the still house apparatus.

Judge Nelson Sharpe Pronounces Sentences.

Judge Sharpe pronounced sentence, Friday, in the following cases: Bert Topham, convicted of illicit cohabitation, forty days in the county jail.

Emil Kangas, indecent exposure—had been in jail 23 days and sentenced to serve ten days further.

Steve Lavandosky, larceny from the person, 18 months in Ionia prison.

Ed Besel, Assault with intent to commit rape, 18 months in Ionia prison.

Francis Decker, rape, jury disagreed. Respondent discharged on his own recognizance to appear at January term of court for re-trial.

"Dresses and Millinery"

This is the season when the housewife is getting winter clothing ready for the children. With this in mind Mrs. Bottomley who writes the fashion articles for the Avalanche has prepared for this issue of the paper a description of a very becoming party dress for the girl of eight to twelve years. She also shows some pictures of winter hats, which she says will show the feminine readers "the direction the millinery wind is blowing at present."

Chronic Constipation.

"About two years ago when I began using Chamberlain's Tablets I had been suffering for some time with stomach trouble and chronic constipation. My condition improved rapidly through the use of these tablets. Since taking four or five bottles of them my health has been fine," writes Mrs. John Newton, N. Y. Obtainable everywhere.

A HAPPY AUTUMN WEDDING.

Well Known Grayling Couple Pledge Marriage Vows.

One of the prettiest autumn weddings was that of Miss Anna Olson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nels Olson of this city when she became the bride of Mr. Ditlev Nikolai Schjotz.

The marriage took place last Wednesday evening, October 20th, at 8 o'clock at the Danish Lutheran church before a large number of the friends of the families. Rev. Kjolhede officiating.

The church was beautifully decorated with palms, southern wild and tame smilax and pink and white chrysanthemums and carnations, tastefully arranged by Mr. Henry Joseph.

At exactly eight o'clock, to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Mrs. George Olson, the groom with the best man, Mr. Anchor Schjotz, brother of the groom entered the church from the side and were seated in front of the altar. Then from the rear of the church came Miss Ruby Olson prettily frocked in white marquisette over pale green messaline, following her came Miss Anna Nelson, as bride's maid, in a pretty gown of white marquisette over pink messaline. Little Marie Olson, as ring bearer came next daintily dressed in white, with pink sash and hair ribbon, carrying a bouquet of pink roses with a lily in the center, in which she carried the ring.

The bride, most becomingly attired in white silk net over white messaline and wearing a pearl Grecian band, and carrying a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies-of-the-valley tied with moline, came leaning on the arm of her father. At the center of the church she was met by the groom, who took her to the altar where they were united in the holy bonds of matrimony, under a beautiful white dove. During the ceremony several selections were rendered by the choir. The Messrs. Waldemar Olson and Ernest Larson officiated as ushers. Immediately after the ceremony the wedding party and guests went to Danebod hall where the reception was held. In the receiving line were the bride and groom with the wedding party and Mr. and Mrs. Nels Olson. Clark's six piece orchestra played several selections while the bride and groom were receiving congratulations. Later in the evening a splendid three course supper was served in the dining room by twelve of the bride's friends. The supper was prepared and served by a caterer from Bay City. The tables were beautifully decorated with pink and white carnations and smilax.

Mrs. Schjotz was born in Grayling and has spent almost her entire life here. She is a young lady deeply devoted to her home, one of the ideal virtues of any young woman. Endowed with good business ability she looks after her own property interests and rentals. Mr. Schjotz is a native of Denmark, coming to this country about eleven years ago and during the past nine years has been manager of the Salling, Hanson company stores. He is recognized as one of Grayling's most progressive business men, whose opinion is quite generally recognized. He is a member of several local fraternal societies and stands high in the esteem of his associates.

They were the recipients of many beautiful gifts of cut glass and silverware from the guests. The out-of-town guests present were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Zauel and Miss Marguerite Waterbury of Saginaw, Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Phelps Jr. of Bay City, Mrs. Daniel Goodrich of Gaylord and Mr. Anchor Schjotz of Detroit. Mr. and Mrs. Schjotz left last night on a wedding trip to Detroit, Chicago and points in Wisconsin. They expect to be at home to their friends in the N. P. Olson residence east of the McClain hotel. Mr. and Mrs. Schjotz will find a host of friends ready to welcome them home, with courtesies that are due the happy couple. They have the best wishes of the people of their old home town generally.

Thomas Morris, Lovells, is pretty happy over the fact that his corn escaped the early frosts. He brot to Grayling last week some ears of corn that would make one set up and take notice, even in a better corn year than this. He also showed samples of potatoes, sugar beets and green beans. These are all good specimens and will be sent to the Development bureau at Bay City, for exhibition. Mr. Morris says that he owns about 700 acres at Lovells and claims that the high altitude of his land is greatly responsible for escaping the early frosts.

A letter from our old friend Frank G. Walton, of Bay City, requesting that we change the address of his Avalanche to Crossville, Cumberland county, Tenn., was received this week. Mr. and Mrs. Walton will spend the winter in this southern city where the former will have charge of a new band, that is being organized there. They will return to Bay City about April 1st when Mr. Walton will resume his old position as director and manager of the 33rd Regiment band. He was at one time director of the Grayling Citizens' band and is a finished musician of a high order of merit and an agreeable gentleman in every way. He also was prosecuting attorney of this county and is well known to most of our citizens. This change will no doubt be pleasant and agreeable to both Mr. and Mrs. Walton.

Bishop Gallagher of the Grand Rapids Diocese, newly appointed Coadjutor bishop, made his first official visit here last Sunday. He visited several other northern cities and at Cheboygan celebrated the consecration of the new St. Charles church recently erected in that city. Sunday afternoon he conferred the sacrament of confirmation on a large class of little folks and converts, there being about thirty in all. The time set for this happy occasion was 3:30 o'clock, and St. Mary's church was crowded to overflowing, several out-of-town people from Gaylord, Frederic, Waters and West Branch being present. Bishop Gallagher was assisted by Fathers Webber of Cheboygan, Nye of Mackinaw, Hasenberg of West Branch and Poigannis of Gaylord and Father Riess of St. Mary's parish this city. At the services Bishop Gallagher delivered an excellent sermon, after which confirmation took place, his Honor examining the members of the class to be confirmed. Immediately after confirmation was given the benediction of the most holy sacrament, which closed the services. During Bishop Gallagher's visit here he met many of the parishioners and others and seemed to fully enjoy his visit.

"Margery," he began, when the interval of thoughtful heart-searching had done its illuminative work, "what would you say if I should tell you that your 'some day' has already come?"

She started as if he had thrust a knife into her. Then she slipped out of his arms and caught up his hand to press it against her cheek.

"I should say, 'Whatsoever seemeth good in the eyes of my dear lord, so let it be.'"

"But think a moment, girl; if one has done wrong, there must be atonement. That is the higher law—the highest law—and no man may evade it. Do you know what that would mean for me?"

"It is the Price, boy, dear; I don't ask you to pay it. Listen: My father and I have agreed to disagree, and he has turned over to me a lot of money that he took from—that was once my mother's brother's share in the Colorado gold claims. What is mine is yours. We can pay back the money. Will that do?"

He was shaking his head slowly. "No," he said, "I think it wouldn't do."

"I was afraid it wouldn't," she sighed, "but I had to try. Are they still gnashing their teeth at you?—the dreadful things, I mean?"

He did not answer in words, but she knew, and held her peace. At the end of the ends he sprang up suddenly and drew her to her feet.

"I can't do it, Margery, girl! I can't ask you to wait—and afterward to marry a convict! Think of it—even if Galbraith were willing to withdraw, the law wouldn't let him, and I'd get the limit; anything from seven years to fifteen or more. Oh, my God, no! I can't pay the price! I can't give you up!"

She put her arms around his neck and drew his head down and kissed him on the lips. "I'll wait," she said, "oh, boy, boy! I'll wait! But I can't push you over the edge nor hold you back. Only don't think of me; please, please don't think of me!"

"Whatsoever seemeth good—that is what you must think of; that is my last word: 'Whatsoever seemeth good.' And she pushed him from her and fled.

CHAPTER XXXI.

The Desert and the Sown.

Through streets in which the village quiet of the summer night was undisturbed save by the spattering tinkle of the lawn sprinklers in the front yards, and the low voices of the outdoor people taking the air and the moonlight on the porches, Griswold fared homeward, the blood pounding in his veins and the fine wire of life mounting headily to his brain.

After all the dubious stumblings he had come to the end of the road, to find awaiting him the great accusation and the great reward. By the unanswerable logic of results, in its effect upon others and upon himself, his deed had proved itself a crime. Right or wrong in the highest ethical fields, the accepted social order had proved itself strong enough to make its own laws and to prescribe the far-reaching penalties for its infraction. Under these laws, he stood convicted. Never again, save through the gate of atonement, could he be reinstated as a soldier in the ranks of the conventionally righteous. True, the devotion of a loving woman, aided by a train of circumstances strikingly fortuitous and little short of miraculous, had averted the final price-paying in penal retribution. But the fact remained. He was a felon.

Into this gaping wound which might otherwise have slain him had been poured the wine and oil of a great love; a love so clean and pure in its own well-springs that it could perceive no wrong in its object; could measure no act of loyal devotion by any standard save that of its own greatness. This love asked nothing but what he chose to give. It would accept him either as he was, or as he ought to be. The place he should elect to occupy would be its place; its standards its standards.

Just here the reasoning angel opened a door and thrust him out upon the edge of a precipice and left him to look down into the abyss of the betrayers—the pit of those whose gift and curse it is to be the peace setters. In a flash of revelation it was shown him that with the great love had come a great responsibility. Where he should lead, Margery would follow, unshrinkingly, unquestioningly; never asking whether the path led up or down; asking only that his path might be hers. Instantly he was face to face with a fanged choice which threatened to tear his heart out and trample upon it; and again he recorded his decision, confirming it with an oath. The price was too great; the upward path too steep; the self-denial it entailed too sacrificial.

"We have but one life to live, and we'll live it together, Margery, girl."

ALL ARE WELCOME TO CLUB

Doors of London Institution Open to Methodists of Every Country in the World.

A unique club has just been launched in London. It is called the Wesley club, and its headquarters are in the great Wesleyan Central hall near the houses of parliament, says the Christian Herald. It is the first club to be formed solely in connection with some religious body, and owes its inception for better or for worse," was his apostrophic declaration, made while he was turning into Shawnee street a few doors from his lodgings; and a minute later he was opening the Widow Holcomb's gate.

The house was dark and apparently deserted as to its street-fronting half when he let himself in at the gate and ran quickly up the steps. The front door was open, and he remembered afterward that he had wondered how the careful widow had come to leave it so, and why the hall lamp was not lighted. From the turn at the stairhead he felt his way to the door of his study. Like the one below, it was wide open; but someone had drawn the window shades and the interior of the room was as dark as a cavern.

Once, in the novel-writing, following the lead of many worthy predecessors, Griswold had made much of the "sixth" sense; the subtle and indefinable presence of invisible danger. No such warning was vouchsafed him when he leaned across the end of the writing table, turned on the gas and held a lighted match over the chimney of the working-lamp. It was while he was still bending over the table, with both hands occupied, that he looked aside. In his own pivot chair, covering him with the mate to the weapon he had smashed and thrown away, sat the man who had opened the two doors and drawn the window shades and otherwise prepared the trap.

"You bought a couple of these little playthings, Mr. Griswold," said the man quietly. "Keep your hands right where they are, and tell in which pocket you've got the other one."

Griswold laughed, and there was a sudden snapping of invisible bonds. He dismissed instantly the thought that Charlotte Farnham had taken him at his word; and if she had not, there was nothing to fear.

"I threw the other one away a little while ago," he said. "Reach your free hand over and feel my pockets."

Broffin acted upon the suggestion promptly. "You ain't got it on you, anyway," he conceded; and when Griswold had dropped into the chair at the table's end, "I reckon you know what I'm here for."

"I know that you are holding that gun of mine at an exceedingly uncomfortable angle—for me," was the cool rejoinder. "I've always had a squeamish horror of being shot in the stomach."

The detective's grin was appreciative. "You've got a good, cold nerve, anyway," he commented. "I've been putting it up that when the time came, you'd throw a fit or some sort—what?"

"Put Them on," He Snapped.

Since you're clothed in your right mind, we'll get down to business. First, I'll ask you to hand over the key to that safety-deposit box you've got in Mr. Grierson's bank."

Griswold took his bunch of keys from his pocket, slipped the one that was asked for from the ring, and gave it to his captor.

"Of course I'm surrendering it under protest," he said. "You haven't yet told me who you are, or what you are holding me up for."

Broffin waved the formalities aside with a pistol-pointed gesture. "We can skip all that. I've got you dead to rights, after so long a time, and I'm going to take you back to New Orleans with me. The only question is, do you go easy or hard?"

"I don't go either way until you show your authority."

"I don't need any authority. You're the parlor anarchist that held up the president of the Bayou State Security bank last spring and made a get-away with a hundred thousand—what?"

"All right; you say so—prove it." Griswold had taken a cigar from the open box on the writing table and was calmly lighting it. There was nothing to be nervous about. "I'm waiting," he went on, placidly, when the cigar was going. "If you are an officer, you probably have a warrant, or a requisition, or something of that sort. Show it up."

"I don't need any papers to take you," was the bark-out retort. Broffin had more than once found himself confronting similar dead walls, and he knew the worth of a bold play.

"Oh, yes, you do. You accuse me of a crime; did you see me commit the crime?"

"No."

"Well, somebody did, I suppose. Bring on your witnesses. If anybody can identify me as the man you are after, I'll go with you—without the requisition. That's fair, isn't it?"

"I know you're the man, and you know it, too, d—n well!" snapped Broffin, angered into bawling words with his obstinate capture.

"That is neither here nor there; I am not affirming or denying. It is for you to prove your case, if you can. And, listen, Mr. Broffin—perhaps it will save your time and mine if I add that I happen to know that you can't prove your case."

"Why can't I?"

"Just because you can't," Griswold went on argumentatively. "I know the facts of this robbery you speak of; a great many people know them. The newspaper accounts said at the time that there were three persons who could certainly identify the robber—the president, the paying teller, and a young woman. It so happens that all three of these people are at present in Wahaska. At different times you have appeared to each of them, and in each instance you have been turned down. Isn't that true?"

Broffin glanced up, scowling. "It's true enough that you—ou and the little black-eyed girl between you—have hoodooed the whole bunch!" he rasped. "But when I get you into court, you'll find that there are others."

Griswold smiled good-naturedly. "That is a bold, bad bluff, Mr. Broffin, and nobody knows it any better than you do," he countered. "You haven't a leg to stand on. This is America, and you can't arrest me without a warrant. And if you could, what would you do with me without the support of at least one of your three witnesses? Nothing—nothing at all."

Broffin laid the pistol on the table, and put the key of the safety box beside it. Then he sat in grim silence for a full minute, toying idly with a pair of handcuffs which he had taken from his pocket.

"By the eternal grapples!" he said, at length, half to himself. "I've a good mind to do it anyway—and take the chances."

As quick as a flash Griswold thrust out his hands.

"Put them on!" he snapped. "There are a hundred lawyers in New Orleans who wouldn't ask for anything better than the chance to defend me—at your expense!"

Broffin dropped the manacles into his pocket and sat back in the swing chair. "You win," he said shortly; and the battle was over.

For a little time no word was spoken. Griswold smoked on placidly, seemingly forgetful of the detective's presence. Yet he was the one who was the first to break the strained silence.

"You are a game fighter, Mr. Broffin," he said, "and I'm enough of a scrapper myself to be sorry for you. Try one of these smokes—you'll find them fairly good—and excuse me for a few minutes. I want to write a letter which, if you are going down town, perhaps you'll be good enough to mail for me."

He pushed the open box of cigars across to the detective, and dragged the lounging chair around to the other side of the table. There was stationery at hand, and he wrote rapidly for a few minutes, covering three pages of the manuscript sheets before he stopped. When the letter was inclosed, addressed, and stamped, he tossed it across to Broffin, face up.

The detective saw the address, "Miss Margery Grierson," and, putting the letter into his pocket, got up to go.

"Just one minute more, if you please," said Griswold, and, relighting the cigar which had been suffered to go out, he went into the adjoining bedroom. When he came back, he had put on a light top coat and a soft hat, and was carrying a small handbag.

"I'm your man, Mr. Broffin," he said quietly. "I'll go with you—and plead guilty as charged."

Wahaska, the village-concealer, had its nine-days' wonder displayed for it in inch-type headlines when the Daily Wahaskan, rehearsing the story of the New Orleans bank robbery, told of the voluntary surrender of the robber, and of his deportation to the southern city to stand trial for his offense.

Some few there were who took exceptions to Editor Randolph's editorial in the same issue, commenting on the surrender, and pleading for a suspension of judgment on the ground that much might still be hoped for from a man who had retraced a broad step in the downward path by voluntarily accepting the penalty. Those who objected to the editorial were of the perverse minority. The intimation was made that the plan had been inspired—a hint basing itself upon the fact that Miss Grierson had been seen visiting the office of the Wahaskan after the departure of the detective, Matthew Broffin, with his prisoner.

The sensational incident, however, had been forgotten long before a certain evening, three weeks later, when the Grierson carriage conveyed the ing place than it has been for all members of the great Methodist family, numbers of whom come to London from all parts of the earth and visit the hall. The visitors' book shows many names from New York, Philadelphia and other American cities, as well as those of callers from Australia, Africa and even from Asia.

Politics will be barred in the Wesley club, and in the first line of members names prominent in all the British political parties appear. The club, in short, is intended to be a place convalescent president of the Bayou State Security from the Grierson mansion to the south-bound train. Andrew Galbraith was not alone in the carriage, and possibly there were those in the sleeping car who mistook the dark-eyed, and strikingly beautiful young woman, who took leave of him only after he was comfortably settled in his section, for his daughter. But the whispered words of leave-taking were rather those of a confidante than a kinswoman.

"I'll arrange the Raymer matter as you suggest," she said, "and if I had even a speaking acquaintance with God, I'd pray for you the longest day I live, Uncle Andrew. And about the trial: I'm going to leave it all with you! Just remember that I shall bleed little drops of blood for every day the judge gives him, and that the only way he can be helped is by a short sentence. He wouldn't take a pardon; he—he wants to pay, you know. Good-night, and good-by!" And she put her strong young arms around Andrew Galbraith's neck and kissed him, thereby convincing the family party in lower seven that she was not only the only man's daughter, but a very affectionate one, at that.

The little-changing seasons of central Louisiana had measured two complete rounds on the yearly dial of time's unremitting and unheating clock when the best hired carriage that Baton Rouge could afford drew up before the entrance to the state's prison and waited. Precisely on the stroke of twelve, a man for whom the prison rules had lately been relaxed sufficiently to allow his hair to grow, came out, looked about him as one dazed, and assaulted the closed door of the carriage as if he meant to tear it from its hinges.

"Oh, boy, boy!" came from the one who had waited; and then the carriage door yielded, opened, closed with a crash, and the negro driver clucked to his horses.

They were half-way to the railroad station, and she was trying to persuade him that there would be months and years in which to make up for the loveless blank, before sane speech found its opportunity. And even then there were interruptions.

"I knew you'd be here; no, they didn't tell me, but I knew it—I would have staked my life on it, Margery, girl," he said, in the first lucid interval.

"And you—you've paid the Price, haven't you, Kenneth? But, oh, boy, dear! I've paid it, too! Don't you believe me!"

There was another interruption, and because the carriage windows were open, the negro driver grinned and confided a remark to his horses. Then the transgressor began again.

"Where are you taking me, Margery?—not that it makes any manner of difference."

"We are going by train to New Orleans, and this—this—very—evening we are to be married, in Mr. Galbraith's house. And Uncle Andrew is going to give the bride away. It's all arranged."

"And after?"

"Afterward, we are going away—I don't know where. I just told dear old Saint Andrew to buy the tickets to anywhere he thought would be nice, and we'd go. I don't care where it is—do you? And when we get there, I'll buy you a pen and some ink and paper, and you'll go on writing the book, just as if nothing had happened. Say, you will, boy, dear; please say you will! And then I'll know that—the price—wasn't too great."

He was looking out of the carriage window when he answered her, across to the levee and beyond it to the far shore of the great river, and his eyes were the eyes of a man who has seen of the travail of his soul and is satisfied.

"I shall never write that book, little girl. The story, and all the mistakes that were going to the making of it, lie on the other side of—the Price. But one day, please God, there shall be another and a worthier one."

"Yes—please God," she said; and the dark eyes were shining softly.

Flour "Aged."

Bakers keep flour for about sixty days as a rule, allowing it to "age" before using. They sometimes point to this fact when bread loaves do not immediately increase in size in sympathy with a decline in the price of the miller's product.

WRECK OF PECULIAR NATURE

The Passenger Train Broke Through the Sagged Portion of the Trestle and Crashed on to the Work Cars Below.

Several fatalities resulted from a railroad wreck of a most unusual nature which recently occurred near Rainier, Wash. At the point where the tragedy happened the tracks of one railroad company cross those of another on a 30-foot trestle. A work train was passing beneath the elevated structure carrying a steam shovel on a flat car as a passenger train approached overhead. The heavy steel boom of the dredger suddenly became unloosed and struck out just in time to hit the wooden trestle violently and weaken some of its supports. Almost at the same instant the passenger train shot on to the sagging section, smashing through and falling on top of the work train. Only the observation car of the passenger remained on the elevated structure.—Popular Mechanics.

AS THE WORLD MOVES RECORD WITHOUT A STAIN

ADVANCE OF RAILROADING IN ONE CENTURY.

Something Very Close to Perfection Has Been Reached in the Comparatively Short Time of a Hundred Years.

One hundred years ago the first locomotive in the world to successfully haul a load of freight upon rails made its maiden trip. Invented by George Stephenson, the "father of locomotives," it made its first run at Killingworth colliery in England. It had so many rods strapped to its boiler that it had the appearance of a huge grasshopper. It weighed about six tons. A pair of "walking-beams," resembling those of a modern side-wheel steamer, turned the four wheels. There being no cab, the engineer had to stand while the engine was in operation. It pulled eight loaded cars, which aggregated a weight of 30 tons, up a track that had a grade of one foot in an eighth of a mile. The test was a "grand" success, the engine running about six miles an hour. The first locomotive to draw a train of cars in the United States made its experimental trip in the Lackawanna coal district fifteen years later. This locomotive also was the product of Stephenson. It was called the Stourbridge Lion, after the place of its manufacture in England. Its American engineer, Horatio Allen, ran the engine over a track of hemlock rails for a preliminary test. Then he invited any gentleman in the gathering of spectators to accompany him. His invitation was not only refused, but he was urged to give up his foolhardy ambition. Laughing at his advisers, he pulled the throttle wide and "dashed" away at ten miles an hour.

Today more than 65,000 locomotives are in motion over the 250,000 miles of track in the United States. They consume about 150,000,000 tons of coal, and carry more than 1,000,000,000 passengers and 1,800,000,000 tons of freight annually. After adopting the English-born child of civilization, the United States took the lead in its development and application, until today it stands as the world's greatest manufacturer of locomotives. Besides making enough to meet the domestic demand, the American manufacturers are shipping locomotives abroad at the rate of a dozen a week to South America and Africa; they are disturbing the calm of the Orient, and are dashing from one end of Europe to the other, and have invaded the land of the locomotive's birth, England. Like the steamship, the locomotive is growing larger and more powerful every year. The largest reported to be in use today is a huge compound engine, which measures 120 feet over all, and weighs 850,000 pounds. It is an oil-burner and carries 4,000 gallons of oil and 12,000 gallons of water. It cost $43,930 to build. These giants have reached a point where one locomotive is so long that it is hinged in the middle with a flexible joint so that it can turn a curve without upsetting. Thus the locomotive has become the modern Atlas that carries the burden of the world's trade and population across the continents.

Railroad Advance.

Before the year 1880 most English railroad carriages had only four wheels and weighed ten tons. From 1880 to 1890 they had six wheels and weighed fifteen or sixteen tons; from 1890 to 1900 they had eight wheels and weighed twenty-four tons, and since 1900 the fashion is twelve wheels for dining and sleeping cars and the weight thirty-five to forty tons.

Railroads in China.

One of the greatest aids to commerce in China is the building of railroads. The country that will be opened up by the Szechwan-Hankow line is an empire in itself. The primitive transportation methods still utilized in the greater part of China hamper trade, and both natives and foreigners are anxious to secure more up-to-date transportation facilities.

Year Began in March.

March 25 once was the first day of the year.

Engineer Has Run Trains for Fifty-Two Years Without an Accident of Any Sort.

Fifty-two years as a railroad man and fifty years as an engineer on the New York Central railroad, without an accident or a black mark of any sort against him, is the proud record of Dennis John Cassin, who retired from the service on August 18 at the age of seventy years.

Cassin, an alert, keen-looking man, with a gray mustache and gray hair, does not show his age. Those who have seen him in the cab of the big locomotive that pulls the Empire State express from the Harlem yards at Albany would take him for a man of about fifty, but up to his trim little figure at 597 Walton avenue, The Bronx, he has documents to prove that he was born on April 18, 1844, at Greenwich, now the City of Rensselaer. He became just fifty years ago on August 18 a full-fledged engineer.

His first engine was one of the old wood-burning "dinkies" that used to run between Westchester county points and the old downtown Grand Central terminal. As engine building progressed he got a better type of locomotive and finally he became the dean and the most trusted engine driver on the road. Despite the fact that he started in when that sort of work was in its infancy, he has kept fully abreast of the times and has passed all the examinations that up-to-date methods require of railroad engineers.

His proudest possession, outside of his family and his record, is a diamond ring he won some years ago in a popularity contest conducted by a railroad magazine, when he was voted, by a big majority, the most popular engineer in the United States.

In addition to the important duty of taking the Empire State safely to Albany at a mile-a-minute speed, Cassin turns around in the Albany yards and brings whirling back to this city another of the crack trains of the road, the Southwestern limited. Better than a mile a minute he makes at times with this train.

In his time Cassin has carried millions of passengers and he can spin many a yarn about the big men he has had in the coaches behind him. Governors of New York, presidents of the United States, bankers, merchants, mayors and famous persons of all sorts have ridden behind Safe Dennis Cassin. In addition to being the dean of the Central forces, Cassin is one of the oldest active railroad engineers in the world.

Life-Saving Devices.

Two patents, Nos. 1147464 and 1-147465, have been issued to William A. Utz of Fort Worth, Tex., for devices for saving the occupants of locomotive cabs in case of accident. In one patent there is a cushioned and asbestos-lined carrier into which a seat may descend and the lid of the carrier is connected to the seat in such manner that as the seat descends the lid will be automatically closed. In the other patent the body of the carrier is composed of a series of steel rings telescopically engaging each other and folding against a stationary top, means being provided for holding the collapsed rings against the top and for releasing them so they may descend to inclose the one to be protected.—Scientific American.

Railroads Worth Billions.

The value of railroads and their equipment in the United States is placed by the federal census bureau at $16,148,000,000; of street railways, $4,598,000,000; of telephones, $1,081,000,000.

WOMAN REFUSES OPERATION

Tells How She Was Saved by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Louisville, Ky.—"I think if more suffering women would take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound they would enjoy better health. I suffered from a female trouble, and the doctors decided I had a tumor on my stomach and would have to be operated upon, but I refused as I do not believe in operations. I had fainting spells, bloated, and could hardly stand the pain in my left side. My husband insisted that I try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I am so thankful I did, for I am now a well woman. I sleep better, do all my housework and take long walks. I never fail to praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for my good health."—Mrs. J. M. RESCH, 1900 West Broadway, Louisville, Ky.

Since we guarantee that all testimonials which we publish are genuine, is it not fair to suppose that if Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has the virtue to help these women it will help any other woman who is suffering in a like manner?

If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

MUCH OF AN ABBREVIATION

Youngster's Name Considerably Shortened From the One That Was Originally Given Him.

A northern man who was visiting in Baltimore stopped on the street one day to have his shoes polished. A bright-eyed little black boy stepped forward to give the desired shine. Becoming interested in the little chap, the Northerner asked his name, to which the boy promptly replied:

"Gen, sah!"

After a few moments of silence, the Northerner continued: "I suppose that is an abbreviation for General?"

"The word 'abbreviation' gave the little fellow pause; however, he was equal to the occasion, and recovered himself. "No, sah," he said, "tain't 'xactly dat; ma shore-nough name an 'Genesis 30:33. So shall my righteousness answer for me in time to come' Washington Carter, but dey jest calle me Gen for short."—Youth's Companion.

Why Do the Girls Do It?

"Why do only very pretty girls wear their hair in knots over their ears?" asked Jenkins.

"Because fur earmuffs cost money in these war days," ventured Judkins. "They wouldn't probably, if they knew constant covering up the ears tends to deafness, besides being unsanitary," said the doctor. "The ears require air as well as the face."

"Fahaw!" returned Jenkins, "they cover their ears because they don't want to hear all the pretty things said about them."

"Jenkins, you don't know a thing about human nature, as exemplified in the pretty girl," retorted the doctor. And they all laughed.

HARD ON CHILDREN

When Teacher Has Coffee Habit.

"Best is best, and best will ever live." When a person feels this way about Postum they are glad to give testimony for the benefit of others.

A school teacher down in Miss. says: "I had been a coffee drinker since my childhood, and the last few years it had injured me seriously."

"One cup of coffee taken at breakfast would cause me to become so nervous that I could scarcely go through with the day's duties, and this nervousness was often accompanied by deep depression of spirits and heart palpitation."

"I am a teacher by profession, and when under the influence of coffee had to struggle against crossness when in the school room."

"When talking this over with my physician, he suggested that I try Postum, so I purchased a package and made it carefully according to directions; found it excellent of flavor, and nourishing."

"In a short time I noticed very gratifying effects. My nervousness disappeared, I was not irritated by my pupils, life seemed full of sunshine, and my heart troubled me no longer."

"I attribute my change in health and spirits to Postum alone."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

SWEDEN.

Some Lapps at Smedalen, Jamtland, drove their reindeer upon a snowdrift on the south side of Brunner mountain. All of a sudden snowslides were started at three different places at the same time. The lower portions of the drift slipped down the mountain side. Most of the reindeer had fortunately reached the upper part of the drift when it broke loose, and they were safe. But those farther down were carried away, eleven of them being killed at once and several others being so badly injured that they had to be killed.

The Swedish-Russian Steel Cable factories is the name of a stock company which has been organized for the purpose of starting two factories in Russia for the manufacture of steel cables. M. Wallenberg, the well-known Swedish millionaire, is one of the organizers of the company. The capital stock is to be no more than $600,000 and no less than $200,000. The factories are to be ready for work in March, 1916.

Certain historical documents indicate that the Riddarholm church in Stockholm contains the remains of several kings from the Middle Ages, notably those of King Magnus Ladulas and Karl Knutsson. At the present time the stone slabs of the floor have been taken away while repairs are going on, and it is proposed to make a search under the altar in order to settle this question for good.

The Stockholm Nya Dagligt Allihanda has published a sensational story about "a secret English league in Sweden." It is said to have been organized in England for the purpose of arousing anti-German sentiment in Sweden. The league seems to have considerable money at its disposal, says the paper, and a Swedish school teacher was offered $5,000 for devoting herself to this agitation.

To the Swedish merchant navy has been added a new school ship, on which "the young sons of the sea" may, under the leadership of experienced seamen, learn to become experts in their vocation. The Transatlantic Shipping company of Gothenburg has equipped the G. D. Kennedy, which was bought in Norway, for this purpose.

The executive committee of the Swedish Red Cross received the following telegram from Trelleborg: "Accept heartily thanks from the Austro-Hungarian and Imperial German invalids for the lovely reception, the kindness, and the many tokens of truly humane affection which we have enjoyed and which in two-fold sense has made a profound impression upon us."—Hassel, Austro-Hungarian captain.

The railway department turned $500,000 into the national treasury for the month of August, which was the same amount as last year.

Karl Albert Staaff, former Swedish premier, is dead. Staaff, Liberal party leader, was a minister without portfolio in the coalition cabinet of 1905, but shortly afterward resigned and formed a cabinet in which he was premier and minister of justice. He resigned in 1906, being succeeded as premier by M. Lindman. In 1911, he again formed a cabinet, remaining in office until February, 1914, when the cabinet resigned because of differences between King Gustaf and its members as to the king's right to make political speeches without first ascertaining if the cabinet approved of the substance of them.

The government ordered an inventory of the grain held in Sweden about the middle of September. The result is not known at this writing.

The traffic of the post office department is growing so fast that those who are engaged in this service are taxed to the utmost.

The tobacco monopoly has demanded a specialization of the work which the representatives of the employees cannot agree to.

C. Hammarlund has prepared a remedy for gooseberry mildew which has proved very effective.

The king of Sweden has granted a permission to the state of Denmark to import from Sweden a number of horses of "trouble pedigree" to be used in the Danish army. The ages of the animals are to vary from four to eight years, and 55 of them shall be bought in Malmohus.

The co-operative supply store of the railway employees of Stockholm, which was started about three months ago, has been doing such a big business that it has to be moved into larger quarters.

The government hesitates to grant a petition for a loan of $135,000 for the establishment of potato drying factories on a large scale. It is certain that no loan will be made unless the payment of the principal and interest at 4 1/2 per cent are guaranteed.

For many years the Swedish match factories imported paper from Finland as raw material. The war shut out this supply. But paper grown in Sweden has proved to answer the purpose almost as well as the imported article.

The following telegram was sent from Hallsberg, and was intended for publication in the press: "The seventh Russian invalid transportation train, charmed by the ardent, truly humane reception given to it by the chivalrous Swedish nation, hereby conveys its deep and heartfelt thanks to all Swedes for their great kindness, which moved all invalids to tears. In the name of the Seventh Russian invalid train—Volunteer Petroff."

A laborers' festival at the Stockholm stadium was attended by more than 18,000 people.

The war has caused the death of 118 Swedes and the loss of 34 ships.

Doctor Marcus, secretary of the government food supply commission, has given an unfavorable answer to a question whether it would be a paying proposition to import pork from America. Such pork, he says, would find no market in Sweden at the present time, excepting, perhaps, the northernmost part of the country.

DENMARK.

About one hundred freeholders in the parish of Horne have formed a stock company for the purpose of building an electric plant. The work will be rushed, so that electricity can be used next Christmas.

A girl at Vorgeard drank something in the dark from a bottle that had been standing open, and she happened to swallow a wasp that had found his way into the bottle. A doctor was called at once, and he declared that the girl had been stung in the throat. She was taken to the Terndrup hospital.

A co-operative electric plant is to be built at Old Ry at a cost of $29,000. This amount covers the cost of installing motors on the farms.

The skeleton of a young man was recently found in a ditch at Hjørring. About seventy years ago a man was lost in that neighborhood, and he was never heard of again.

Part of the grain on the Tustrup estate at Randers was harvested in American fashion this fall. A motor which had been used for plowing the field before was hitched to two self-binders, and the whole outfit worked in a very satisfactory manner.

Peter Christensen, a farmer at Sijern, tied his mare while he went in to drink coffee. Close by was a beehive, and when he came back the mare and her colt were covered with a swarm of mad bees. It was dangerous for any human being to come near the poor animals. They were soon cut loose, however, but by that time they were so fearfully stung that the colt died in two hours, and the mare the next day.

NORWAY.

The fox farm of Gotfred Fuglestad of Hommersdal has become an important industry. Between sixty and seventy animals are kept in different compartments according to their species. Most of them were born last spring. Almost one-half of the number were born of animals imported from Iceland. So far the chief aim of Mr. Fuglestad has been to raise animals for breeding purposes. Whenever he kills one he sells the skin in London. The price for a blue fox runs all the way from $25 to $75. The animals require next to no care. Everything moves like clockwork, and the foxes behave pretty much like other domestic animals. They eat fish, meat scraps, potatoes, in short, everything that remains after an ordinary meal. From what has been said it is evident that it pays to raise foxes of the expensive kinds.

Nikolai Spielkavik, a Trondhjem blacksmith, who has enjoyed a limited education, has invented a number of useful contrivances, and a short while ago he demonstrated that he had applied a new principle in the making of hand bombs. The location of the explosives is exerted to the sides only, and not in the direction from which the missile came.

A number of the most prominent business men of the country have elected a committee to take under consideration the question of putting an embargo on the exportation of salted herring in order to keep the price down on the home market.

The 562-ton Norwegian bark Actie has burned at sea. Dispatches received from London state that the crew was saved.

The city of Christiansand is going to float a loan of $400,000 for transmitting electric power from the mainland, building a new schoolhouse, and grading new streets.

As early as the second of September there was a heavy snowfall in upper Osterdalen. Some new-mown hay was covered with a twelve-inch layer of snow. There are very few grouse this year, a covey generally consisting of only two or three birds.

Archaeologists are much interested in some inscriptions found on a stone slab at Kongshaug. They represent two deer or moose and some other animals. They are said to date from the later stone age, that is, they are about four thousand years old.

The national food supply commission has collected statistics which go to prove that the amount of flour consumed during the war year, or to be more exact, from August 1, 1914, to July 31, 1915, was 170,000 tons less than for the previous year. The saving was mainly on barley and oats, the decrease for these being 92,000 tons. It is admitted that these figures are only approximately correct.

The Norwegian steamer Elizabeth burned and sank off Le Hove. The crew was rescued.

CARSON RESIGNS FROM CABINET

CRISIS IN BRITISH GOVERNMENT THOUGHT IMMINENT.

GEN. HAMILTON IS RECALLED

Reason for Action of Attorney General Is Thought to Be Popular Demand for Change.

London—Sir Edward Carson, attorney general, has resigned from the cabinet and General Sir Ian Hamilton has been recalled from command of the British forces on the Dardanelles front.

These two announcements, coming late Monday night, are expected to bring on the government crisis that has been predicted ever since the diplomatic failure of the Allies in the Balkans became known.

The reasons for Sir Edward Carson's resignation were not made public, but it is surmised that his retirement was the outcome of his advocacy of conscription.

It was reported some days ago that several members of the cabinet were about to resign as a means of compelling conscription.

Sir Edward Carson's resignation is said to have been in the hands of Premier Asquith for several days.

The recall of General Hamilton was announced in the following statement issued by the war office:

"General Sir Charles Carmichael Monro has been appointed to command the Mediterranean force in succession of Sir Ian Hamilton, who is returning to England to report. Pending General Monro's arrival General Birdwood commands."

Thus three sources of controversy between the government and the public—the Dardanelles campaign, the Balkan situation and the conscription question—have virtually been brought to an issue.

The dissatisfaction with the conduct of war by the present cabinet of 22 is growing, apace with the ever-increasing demand for the elimination from the government as many "lawyer politicians" as possible. It is urged that they be replaced by naval and military experts and big business men with great organizing capacity who have proved their ability in their respective lines.

Despite the restrictions imposed by the censorship, public opinion is compelling the press to take the matter seriously. It is plain that a crisis is at hand. The ministers are still endeavoring to protect themselves either by attempts to justify themselves in public speeches or communications to the newspapers, or through the guise of anonymous letters to their constituents, but the people no longer hearken to the cry, "Trust the government!"

FRYE NOTE IS MADE PUBLIC

United States Does Not Regard Life Boats As Sufficiently Safe.

Washington—Publication Monday night of the text of the latest note sent by the United States to Germany in the case of the American ship William P. Frye reveals that the United States does not regard "an opportunity to escape in lifeboats" as sufficient safety for passengers and crew of any American vessel destroyed when carrying contraband.

In the note, which is dated October 12, Secretary Lansing expresses satisfaction that Germany agreed to the American proposal for a joint commission of experts to fix damages for the loss of the Frye, sunk by the commerce raider Prinz Eitel Friedrich, and concurs in the suggestion from Berlin that it is not necessary to appoint an umpire in advance.

Prominent Citizen of State Dead.

Ann Arbor—Colonel Henry S. Dean, 85, for years head of Dean & Co., wholesale merchants of this city, former regent of the University of Michigan, past commander of the Michigan G. A. R. and twice prominently mentioned for the Republican nomination for governor, died at his home here early Monday morning of heart disease.

Funeral services were held at the residence at 3 p. m. Wednesday.

NEW TREATMENT FOR ASTHMA

To quickly ease the struggle for breath, stop the wheezing and bring blessed relief, ask your druggist for an original yellow box of true Mustarine which costs about 25 cents. Apply plentifully night and morning, and remember to rub up and down only, over the entire chest from the throat to the stomach. True Mustarine is made by the Bogy Medicine Co., Rochester, N. Y. It is also fine for Rheumatism, Lumbago and Neuralgia. Get the genuine.—Adv.

Reasonable. "I suppose you study a subject thoroughly before you make a speech on it?" said an admiring constituent. "Well, not too thoroughly," said the senator. "You see, if I did my conscience might not let me make the speech."

Most particular women use Red Cross Ball Blue. American made. Sure to please. At all good grocers. Adv.
